

The UAE's journey to the future requires a continuous development process that focuses on the Emirati person, adopts his capabilities, raises his experiences and performance, and enables him the tools to help him face the coming challenges. Success in managing change requires that senior management possess the skills and tools to formulate an appropriate strategy and then work to implement it. These two elements constitute what is now known as "strategic leadership", which charts the vision and direction for achieving the company's growth and success. The executive leadership program in the Emirates government leadership program in the federal and local government agencies and the private sector, that the concept of leadership in government work is not summed up by names or locations but rather an evolving intellectual approach and a system based on looking ahead and anticipating its changes and preparing for and dealing with it wisely, efficiently and results in the field. Building leadership in the UAE government is a renewable and sustainable development approach that attracts national minds and competencies and raises its capabilities and enhances its experiences and skills, to participate actively in shaping the features of the future of the country and achieve the goals of our strategic plans represented by the UAE vision 2021 and the UAE centenary 2071. The Emirates model for government leadership adopts a unique perspective The characteristics of government leaders, and defines the main characteristics that the Emirati government leader must be an ambitious, global, ambitious, positive, tolerant, happy, broad-minded, familiar with future technology, a global ambassador for the state, focusing to lead the root change, his work.

Omar Ismail Al Khoori

Omar_AI_Khoori@yahoo.com